Copyright Laws Protect Your Right to be Paid for Your Work

Here in the United States, creators of original works, such as photographers, artists, musicians, writers and more are entitled to copyright protection for their original work.

Many professionals, particularly photographers and videographers license their work to news outlets and other companies. When your work is illegally copied from that site and republished by another media company, you have rights.

Our lawyers are passionate about protecting those whose copyrights have been violated. Whether a national television network, an online news outlet or other company, we fight for you.

Our firm was created by an attorney with a passion and life-long interest in photography. He is an avid photographer and has had his own works published. Today, Richard Liebowitz, Esq. and his attorneys fight for photographers worldwide who lack the resources to protect themselves..

We work on a contingency fee basis, meaning we get a part of the recovery when we succeed. You do not pay by the hour for our services, which is how most firms handle these cases.

With our approach, the struggling photographer, videographer, writer, artist or other creator of copyright works can have the law on their side.

In the News

Our firm has been widely covered in the news, because of our willingness to take on the large media companies who violate our clients' rights.
